

“STRENGTHENING PARTNERSHIPS 2 MEET GLOBAL CHALLENGES”

You are cordially invited to attend the 2010 Advancing Minorities' Interest in Engineering (AMIE) Conference to help businesses in their efforts to diversify America's work force in preparation for the challenges of the 21st Century and beyond.

The conference will feature prominent speakers and inspiring roundtable discussions and will be held on Wednesday, and Thursday, September 8, and 9 at Jackson State University, Jackson, MS.

Please join us as we bring together the Council of Engineering Deans of the Historically Black Colleges and Universities, engineering professionals, and leaders from the top corporations in the United States to develop strategies to promote the engineering profession among minority students and to foster an increase in the number of minority graduates in the field. Be a part of this exciting initiative by America's corporate leadership, respected engineering professionals, and outstanding engineering academicians. You can make a difference. Register now.
